

Best Steakhouses in the U.S.

Urban Farmer, Portland, OR

Shelves with jars of pickled fruits and vegetables, a 20-foot-long communal table made from old-growth Douglas fir, and an airy, atrium setting on the eighth floor of the LEED-certified Nines Hotel creates the kind of hipster-meets-farmhouse feel for which Portland has become famous. But there's also plenty to satisfy the traditionalist: Pacific oysters on the half shell, creamed spinach, and cowhide booths. The New York tasting includes a sampling of grass-fed, corn-fed, and grain-finished beef, plus an optional Wagyu add-on—and goes nicely with the local Ransom Spirits whiskey or a glass of Willamette Valley Pinot.

The screenshot shows the Travel + Leisure website interface. At the top, the logo "TRAVEL + LEISURE" is prominent, with social media links for Facebook (Like), Twitter (Follow), and a Sign In button. A search bar is located to the right of the logo. Below the logo is a navigation menu with categories: DESTINATIONS, GETAWAYS, PHOTO CONTEST, IDEAS, AWARDS, and DEALS. An advertisement for the American Express Blue Cash Everyday card is displayed, featuring the card image and text: "Get the Blue Cash Everyday® Card from American Express. • Earn 100 Reward Dollars • $0 Annual Fee • Cash back on everyday purchases". Below the ad is a breadcrumb trail: "home > magazine table of contents - march-2013 > best steakhouses in the u.s.". The main article title is "Best Steakhouses in the U.S." with a sub-header "Urban Farmer, Portland, OR". The article text is identical to the one on the left. A photograph of the restaurant's interior is shown, featuring a communal table and cowhide booths. The photo is credited to "Courtesy of Urban Farmer". At the bottom of the article, there is a promotional banner: "Enter NOW for a chance to win a DREAM VACATION". Navigation buttons for "BACK" and "NEXT" are visible on either side of the page number "8 of 32".
